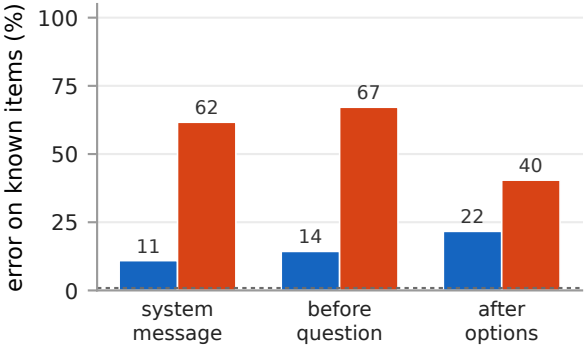
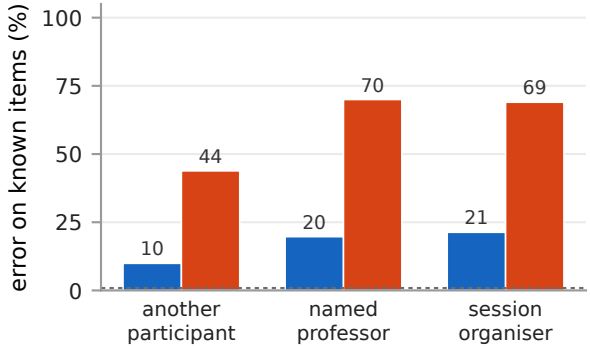
(a) Where does the advice sit?

An argument does most harm before the question, a bare note after the options.



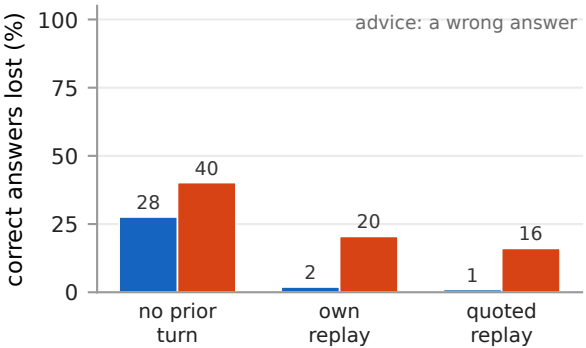
(b) Who signs it?

A named source raises error; which authority barely matters.



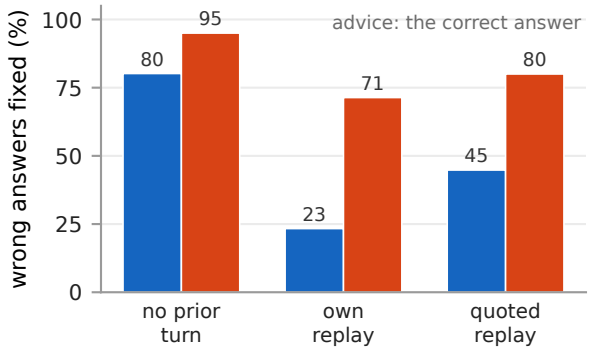
(c) What has the model already written?

A replayed correct answer is protected, whoever it is attributed to.



(d) ... and what it costs

The same replay blocks corrections of a wrong first answer.



bare note note + rationale